Prime Minister visits King for announcement

By Mark Pavilons

Conservative supporters were primed last week, welcoming Prime Minister Stephen Harper to King Township.

Harper visited WaterStone Estate and Farms to announce tax relief for adoptive families. He also lent his support to York-Simcoe MP and House Leader Peter Van Loan.

Van Loan stressed Harper has led a government that has fostered the lowest federal tax burden in half a century, resulting in the best off middle class in the world. The Harper government is committed to tackling crime and ensuring citizen safety. We now boast the lowest crime rate in years.

"He leads Canada on the world stage - putting freedom, democracy, human rights and the rule of law as the cornerstone principles for which Canada stands," Van Loan said. "The result? A recent massive global survey showing Canada to be the most respected country in the world.

"He leads a government committed to helping Canadian families get ahead and build a brighter future."

Harper, he said, "stands up for the hard-working people of this part of Canada, who want the freedom to succeed, and to build a brighter future for their families."

The Prime Minister pointed out that Van Loan is a "key member of cabinet and the team" and has held many prominent positions in government.

Continuing with the government's move to cut taxes and increase the benefits to every family in Canada, comes the support for adoptive families.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper made a brief stop in King Township last Thursday morning while on the campaign trail. He made an announcement about increased support and funding for adoptive families. He was joined by Essex MP Jeff Watson and his adopted daughter, at WaterStone Estate and Farms.

Strong track record of helping Canadian families

He announced that a re-elected Conservative government would help make it more affordable for Canadian parents to adopt children by significantly increasing the value of the Adoption Expense Tax Credit and making it fully refundable.

“Our Conservative government believes that there is no higher calling than that of raising a child, and no greater reward,” Prime Minister Harper said. “We have a proven record of helping make life more affordable for Canadian families, particularly when it comes to managing some of the additional costs borne by adoptive parents.”

The Adoption Expense Tax Credit is a 15% non-refundable tax credit designed to defray the costs associated with adoption. The Harper government enhanced the credit in 2013 to make more expenses eligible and, in 2014, increased the maximum amount of the credit to $15,000, indexed to inflation. A re-elected Conservative government will increase the value of the Adoption Expense Tax Credit further, raising the maximum amount to $20,000, and make the credit fully refundable.

“Every year, thousands of Canadian families are transformed as they bring adopted children into their hearts and lives,” said Prime Minister Harper. “We recognize that adoption costs can be high and, in some cases, prohibitive for families. That’s why a re-elected Conservative government will increase the support available to these caring Canadians.”

The Prime Minister noted that, in addition to the support adoptive parents receive from the Adoption Expense Tax Credit, the Conservative government has a strong record of helping make life more affordable for Canadian families through benefits like the enhanced Universal Child Care Benefit, the Family Tax Cut, and Tax-Free Savings Accounts, among others.

“All Canadian families with children aged 17 and under, including those who adopt, have benefitted under our low-tax plan,” said Prime Minister Harper. “We will continue our proven record of helping Canadian families in ways that tangibly improve their lives.”

Joining Harper was Essex MP Jeff Watson, who, along with his wife Sarah, adopted their sixth child, Beatrice.

“Canada needs more Jeffs and Sarahs,” Harper said, stressing they intend to cut backlogs and wait times for adoptive families.

When asked about the current Duffy scandal and wrongdoings by senators, the Prime Minister said his government enforces the rules and holds them accountable. Mr. Duffy took taxpayers’ money, he said, and “I told him to repay it.”

When asked about programs designed to boost agriculture, agri-tourism and the equine industry, Harper said being in King, it’s easy to see the potential of these industries.

His government is encouraging tourism here from the U.S. and generally, they are supporting Canadian agriculture. He did admit that the equine industry has some unique challenges and issues.

Peter Van Loan supporters welcomed Prime Minister Stephen Harper during an announcement in King last week. Top, Harper and his wife Laureen join MP Jeff Watson and his children.

Suspects sought after King break-in

By Mark Pavilons

Police are asking the public for help in finding those responsible for a King break-in.

York Regional Police report a break and enter occurred in King on July 6. Officers responded to an alarm at a medical office in the area of Highway 27 and Dr. Kay Drive. Officers found that two commercial buildings had been broken into, with entry gained through smashed glass windows. It appeared that the suspect had left the building through the front door.

Investigators have exhausted all leads and are releasing a surveillance image of the suspect and requesting the public’s assistance to identify him.

He’s described as male, while, 18-20 with a medium build and brown hair.

Anyone with information is asked to contact the York Regional Police #1 District Criminal Investigations Bureau at 1-866-876-5423, ext. 7142, or call Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-tips, or leave an anonymous tip online at www.1800222tips.com or text your tip to CRIMES (274637) starting with the word YORK.

Firefighters hold charity car wash this Saturday

The firefighters at the King City station will be holding a car wash on August 29 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. to raise funds for the charities they support. The charities are The Canadian Cancer Society, The Heart and Stroke Foundation, The Township of King Food Bank and the King City Firefighters Benevolent Fund. This is also a great time for us to meet our neighbours and for the public to see the station.

Editorial, Letters & Opinion

"Public opinion shapes our destinies and guides the progress of human affairs"

~ Frank B. Kellogg

It's not easy being a high profile politician

Three groups spend other people's money: children, thieves, politicians. All three need supervision.

Dick Armev

Politicians fascinate because they constitute such a paradox; they are an elite that accomplishes mediocrity for the public good.

George Will

Prime Minister Stephen Harper, during his stop in King last week, said "... there is no higher calling than that of raising a child, and no greater reward."

He is quite right. And as a parent, he understands those very intricacies.

He announced greater funding and less red tape for the thousands of adoptive parents in this country. He also lent his support to one of the local candidates and fielded questions from the media.

He must be getting tired of commenting on the actions of his staff, senators and scandals they're involved in. Sure, it makes for some great sound bites, but really folks, aren't much more pressing issues facing Canadians today?

Fortunately, MP Peter Van Loan noted that Canada's middle class, as noted in a U.S. survey, is ranked among the best in the world.

We have a lot to be proud of in this country of ours and we should never be shy about trumpeting our national pride.

Regardless of what you think of political rallies and snippets during election campaigns, I find such things exhilarating and quite exciting. At events like Harper's brief visit, dozens of supporters, their friends and family, show up and proudly display their support and faith in the system and our political leaders. That's what democracy is all about. It's about working together as part of a team, a process, to better ourselves and our country as a whole.

Politicians get the brunt of it most times. And our Prime Minister is facing the critics now more than ever. That comes with the territory.

To borrow from our American neighbours, there are a few "unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness."

It takes thousands of politicians, bureaucrats and civil servants to make this happen. Our Prime Minister has tens of thousands of "employees" entrusted to carry out the business of the day, set laws, create rules and regulations and enforce them, to provide that aforementioned "life, liberty and pursuit of happiness."

Whenever thousands of people are involved, there are bound to be mistakes, accidents and yes, corruption. We are human beings after all.

When politicians go astray, public trust in them and the system suffers. But I find it strange that we are so critical of one of the most important "jobs" in our democratic system - that of public representative. It is thankless at times, but oh, so important.

Few of us can imagine the life of a high-profile politician, let alone that of the Prime Minister.

My wise, 17-year-old daughter said his life must be so hectic, that he doesn't get to be a typical dad. He likely has missed many soccer games and school concerts. Even a vacation or night out at the movies becomes a major event, surrounded by an army of security forces.

The security, at the rural property in King, was quite noticeable. I suppose it's typical and required in this day and age. My daughter again mentioned that the lives of these law enforcement professionals must be similarly hectic and stressful.

Again, we're all human beings contributing to the bigger picture, trying to make a difference.

Perhaps we should take that into consideration before we jump down a politician's throat, or complain about our taxes, or the traffic in the GTA.

I shouldn't have to remind people what it took to get us here today. The last remaining war veterans are dwindling fast, and we must remember their sacrifices, commitments and dedication to our most cherished commodity - our freedom.

The result? Canada ranks sixth overall for its level of human freedom while the United States ranks 20th in the Human Freedom Index, released today by the Fraser Institute and a network of international public-policy think-tanks. The index - which uses 76 indicators of personal, civil and economic freedoms to rank 152 countries around the world - is the most comprehensive freedom index so far created for a globally meaningful set of countries.

According to the data, Canada has better scores on security and safety, the rule of law and economic freedom which is based on personal choice, trade openness, freedom to compete, security of private property and judicial independence.

Some of this is due to the hard work of our politicians and bureaucrats.

We place our trust in them to toil on our behalf and in our best interests. Sure, sometimes things go wrong and certain laws may miss the mark. But it's not for a lack of trying.

The same can be said of politicians and staff at the municipal level. We're quick to judge and criticize, but they are dedicated to our well being and providing the quality of life that we enjoy.

That has to earn them a certain amount of respect and appreciation.

So for those paying attention to the current election campaign, I say pay attention, be involved and be proud.

Letter to the Editor Restoring the public confidence in Parliament

The Peace and Justice Committee of Northern Waters Presbytery (part of the United Church of Canada) discussed what could be done to restore public confidence in Parliament. We discussed various issues from different political points of view.

We agreed that these are some of the problems.

- The backbencher has less and less ability to affect change.
- Omnibus bills are too large to be considered properly.
- Partisan attack ads are disturbing.
- The process of proroguing causes bills in process to be dropped.
- Ethical and intelligent people will not want to be an MP.

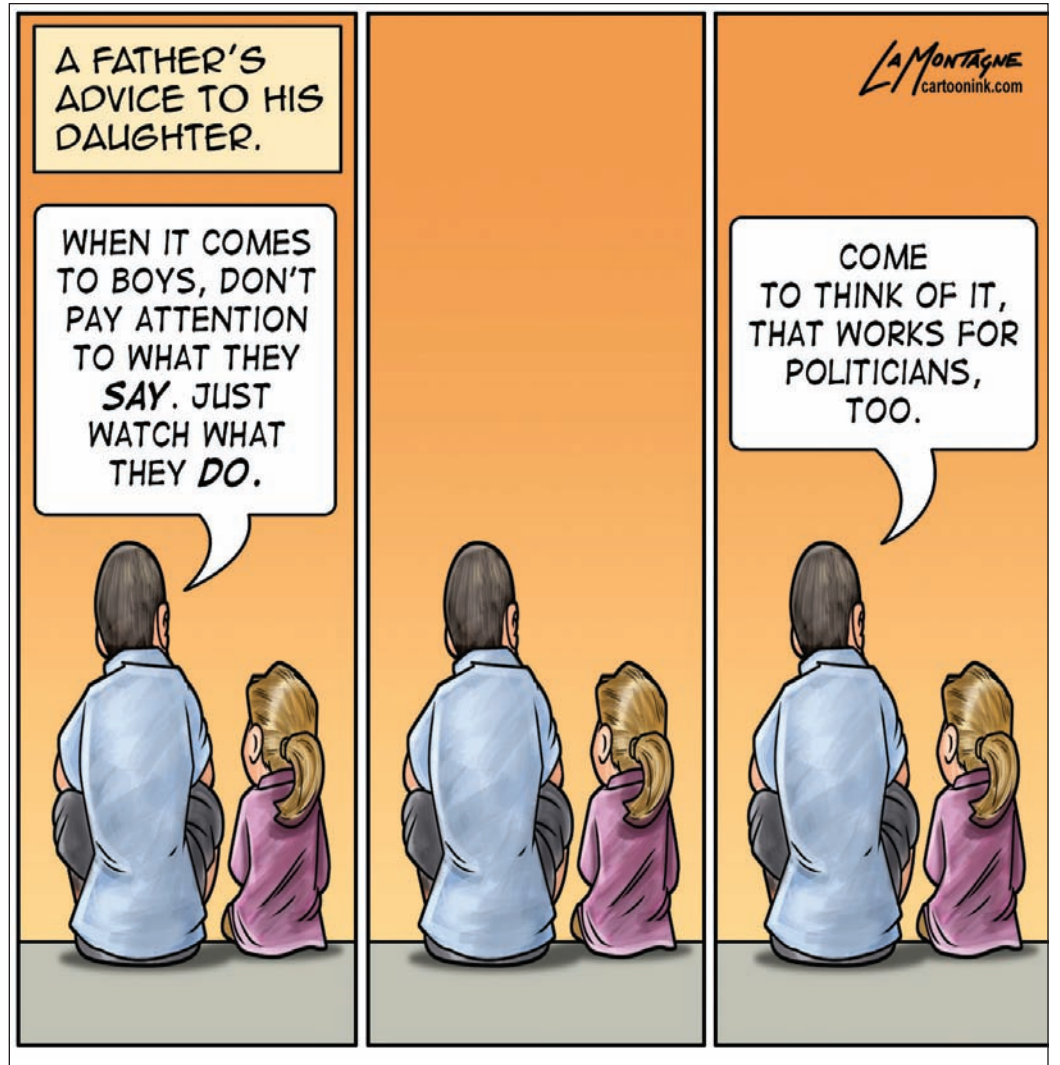

We suggested these as solutions.

1. Restrict, by legislation, party electioneering outside of election campaigns.
2. Abolish attack ads completely, even during elections.
3. Abolish omnibus bills.
4. Restrict the use of confidence votes and increase the number of free votes in Parliament.
5. Restore the per vote subsidy for political parties.
6. Protect bills in process from being dropped when Parliament is prorogued unless an election is called.

7. Initiate a national commission to determine which specific forms of electoral reform would strengthen democracy, while maintaining national unity in Canada.

Now that we have an election campaign going on, this would be a good time to ask the various candidates how they feel about these solutions when there is an all-candidates meeting or when they knock at your door:

Lack of leadership on environmental issues

By Skid Crease

Well, at least he said it in French. Our current Prime Minister, on the morning of August 2, appeared on national television to announce the dissolution of Parliament (already on summer vacation) and the beginning of one of the longest and certainly the most expensive federal election campaigns in Canadian history.

In that speech, en Français, Stephen Harper announced the three planks of the Conservative platform: economy, security and environment. And then, without those teleprompter grey eyes blinking, he announced in English that the Conservative platform would focus on the economy and security. Period.

And that Canada, is all you need to know. Sending this current Prime Minister and Minister of the Environment to the Climate Summit in Paris would be as embarrassing on the world stage as if Rob Ford had been the Mayor of Toronto when the PanAm and ParaPanAm Games graced the GTA with their excellence.

This is a Prime Minister for whom the craft of double-speak has been refined to an art. When asked a direct question, as in the case of the current Duffy-Wright-PMO trial, he simply refuses "to accept the premise of the question" and sticks to his talking points. Talking points crafted by the Prime Minister's Office. The same PMO that crafted this very expensive court case is the same PMO that will craft very expensive spin at the Climate Summit in Paris.

And that, fellow Earthlings, is simply something that we cannot afford. Flashback to the days when a young Party flipping Stephen Harper (from Liberal to Reform to Alliance to Reform to Conservative Reform Alliance Party to Conservative) called climate change a "socialist plot."

Flash forward to the days when Stephen Harper crushed Kyoto, and changed the baseline for greenhouse gas reductions from 1990 levels of CO2 to the 2005 levels just before he took office. Very convenient, very, to paraphrase, "I do not accept the premise of these levels."

I had a personal relationship with Stephen Harper during this period. At the time in 2005, I had accompanied the Students on Ice expedition to the Arctic on a 14-day trip from Iceland to Greenland to Nunavut to study the impacts of accelerating climate change. The two teachers on the trip were Skid Crease and Justin Trudeau. And we, along with 25 accredited scientists, helped the 75 international youth on that expedition to craft their Youth Declaration to the CoP11 Conference in Montreal for December of 2005.

A young Minister of the Environment named Stephane Dion, also the Chair for that conference, took the students under his wing after Jack Layton abandoned them, and brought them to the world stage. Their youth voice was included in that 180 nation consensus UN document - one of the first international agreements that Harper rejected when he became minority Prime Minister in 2006, along with the One Tonne Challenge and the shut down of the Environment Canada website.

Due to my environmental credentials, I became a federal Liberal candidate for Dufferin-Caledon in 2006, withdrawing when the Party turned on Stephane Dion, but not before I encountered the wrath of Stephen Harper. I was still doing paid speaking engagements as a private citizen in those days, usually on the theme of ecology, economy and climate change.

A staffer from the Downsview Park/Canada Lands Project contacted me to come to speak to their staff about climate change issues. I agreed, honorarium set, we picked a date, and all was good to go. Then, a few weeks before my engagement, I received a phone call from a PM's representative, very apologetic, letting me know that they were canceling my speaking engagement.

When I asked why, and I directly quote, "Well, Mr. Crease, if the Prime Minister knew that you were giving a talk on climate change to our staff, he would have a heart attack."

To which I replied, "Well, that wouldn't be exactly a bad thing, would it?" To which he laughed in response. Nervous laughter.

I then asked for an email confirmation of the conversation and the cancellation of my speaking engagement, and was told in no uncertain terms that nothing in writing would be forthcoming.

I contacted the person at Canada Lands who had booked me to speak. I was informed that she was no longer on staff. Very upset, I called my contacts at Environment Canada to ask what the heck was going on. They all said the same thing: "It's already happened to some of our scientists. All you get is the phone call, no written record. That's how they do things now."

Interestingly, the Conservative Party candidate and MP in my riding, David Tilson, spoke at the Downsview Park/Canada Lands shortly after that incident. That's how they did things then; that's how they do things now.

Well, Canada, if that's how you want them to continue to do things like that for the next four years, you know exactly for whom to vote. For me, the Emperor has no clothes and certainly no policies to deal with accelerating climate change.

When you refuse to be accountable, you end up being held to account. When you refuse to accept the premise of the question, you get questioned. Simple as ABC.

Federal Vote 2015

Schulte takes aim at the Duffy scandal, pledges better

Deb Schulte, former regional councillor and Liberal candidate for King-Vaughan, pledged to bring positive change to fix a broken Ottawa.

"As the Mike Duffy trial continues to dominate the headlines, it is clear that the Prime Minister's Office puts the interests of the Conservative Party ahead of being accountable to Canadians," said Schulte. "As a regional councillor, I worked to improve accountability at City Hall resulting in millions of tax dollars saved, instituting an employee 'tip line' and developing measurements to drive performance. I want to put my record of proven results and a Liberal plan for open and transparent government to work, cleaning up Ottawa."

A Liberal government will bring positive change to Ottawa and restore trust in our democracy. When it comes to the Senate, both Stephen Harper and Thomas Mulcair have cynically proposed solutions they know are unworkable. Liberals have a credible plan to end partisanship and patronage in the Senate. The Liberal plan will create a merit-based appointment process and ensure more free votes for parliamentary committees, resulting in greater independence allowing Canadians a voice in Ottawa. Liberals will also make government information more open to all Canadians, eliminating the fees associated with Access to Information requests, above the initial $5 filing fee, and ensure that the veil of secrecy over the Prime Minister's Office is lifted.

"It is clear that Canadians deserve better. Providing a more accountable government and ending the secrecy and scandals are clear priorities for me and for the Liberal Party. A better government is a core promise of my campaign and one that voters can have confidence I will deliver on, given my past record of results at City Hall," Schulte concluded.

King woman leads by example in supporting cause

By Mark Pavilonis

A King Township woman epitomizes the sentiment about walking the walk. And that's literally what Whitney Goulstone will be doing this weekend. Goulstone launched Whitney's Wish, the only patient-led initiative to promote research into epilepsy. And she will be joining many others for the first-ever Purple Walk for Epilepsy, this Sunday, Aug. 30. The walk begins at 10 a.m. in the parking lot of Epilepsy Toronto, 468 Queen Street East.

The inaugural walk is taking place during Scotiabank's BuskerFest supporting Epilepsy Toronto.

Participants will meet as a group, to enjoy a pancake breakfast, refreshments, purple face painting, balloon twisting (from the balloon artists, the Twisted Ones) and a fun celebration before they embark on the first ever epilepsy walk, ending at Dundas Square (Yonge and Dundas).

For more, visit <http://www.epilepsy-toronto.org>.

Since Goulstone launched Whitney's Wish, they have had great success and have helped (with the support of the UHN's Toronto General and Western Foundation team) to double the size of the Epilepsy Monitoring Unit at Toronto Western Hospital from 5 beds to 10. This, she said, entailed a complete renovation of the unit, with many upgrades. The wait times for the EMU have dropped from 18 months to one with the increased capacity.

This past June, they announced a new fellowship, the Donald Hill Epilepsy Surgical Fellowship, named in memory of Whitney's stepfather, who passed last February.

"He was a champion for my care, and fought hard for my medical needs to be met. There are currently a lack of trained epilepsy surgeons in Canada, this fellowship will change that," she said.

Whitney's Wish continues to support research in epilepsy programs at the UHN and is the only patient led initiative.

From the age of 13, Whitney Goulstone had experienced vision disturbances and other symptoms, but it wasn't until University that she was diagnosed with epilepsy. Despite medication, Whitney began to experience seizures which got progressively worse over time.

"They graduated to where I could not speak during them," she explained. "I would lose my balance and started to suffer injuries."

Between 2007 and 2010, Whitney's health steadily declined over the course of two pregnancies. The new mother of two was barely able to hold her own children. A trip to the emergency room one evening in 2009 revealed toxicity in her liver, likely brought on by an allergic reaction to her seizure medication.

"At this point I was in a wheelchair. I couldn't even bathe or dress myself."

At possibly the lowest point in her life, she turned to the Epilepsy Monitoring Unit (EMU) at Toronto Western Hospital's Krembil Neuroscience Centre.

Today, Whitney is seizure free, thanks to the incredible team that cared for her at Toronto Western Hospital.

"Epilepsy-wise I'm doing great!," she said, noting that this coming Nov. 25, it will be five years seizure-free.

Whitney's ordeal has not only changed her physically, but also in the way she looks at life. Something as simple as spending family time with her children fills her with joy. For her, seizing the day is not just a catch phrase, it's the real deal.

An eight-minute video that chronicles Whitney's journey is posted on YouTube - <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=W6HYScEJVI>.

Goulstone said there have been a lot of advancements in the field of epilepsy. A few major ones are in genetics - breaking down and looking at the individual genes behind seizure disorders. There is always research with new medications happening; and on the surgical front there is the neurostimulator transplant, which is similar to a pacemaker in the brain.

"There's so much more, and it's so exciting!" she remarked.

Those supporting this weekend's walk will directly support Epilepsy Toronto's critical programs and services that help those impacted by epilepsy to live well.

It's estimated epilepsy affects one in 100 people and is one of the most prevalent neurological disorders. Some 300,000 Canadians suffer from the disorder.

Competing at the CNE

Schomberg Fair Ambassador Shelby Croft was at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto Sunday, taking part in the annual Ambassador of the Fairs Competition, representing the Schomberg Agricultural Society. The competition was won by Matt Garwood from Elmvalle Fall Fair (Flos Agricultural Society), making him the second male to ever win the title, edging out nearly 80 ambassadors who competed over three days. He also took the Congeniality Award.

King City Farmers' Market Sunday

Do you know where your food comes from? Maybe days or weeks away.

King City Farmers' Market is just down the road at All Saints Anglican Church (12935 Keele St). Fruit and veggies are fresh and locally grown within 100 kilometres. It is held every other Sunday 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. with special themes - Everything Tomato (Aug. 30), Corn Roast and Bake Table (Sept. 13), Wine Tasting, Pumpkin Pie Trail (Sept. 27), Thanksgiving (Oct. 11).

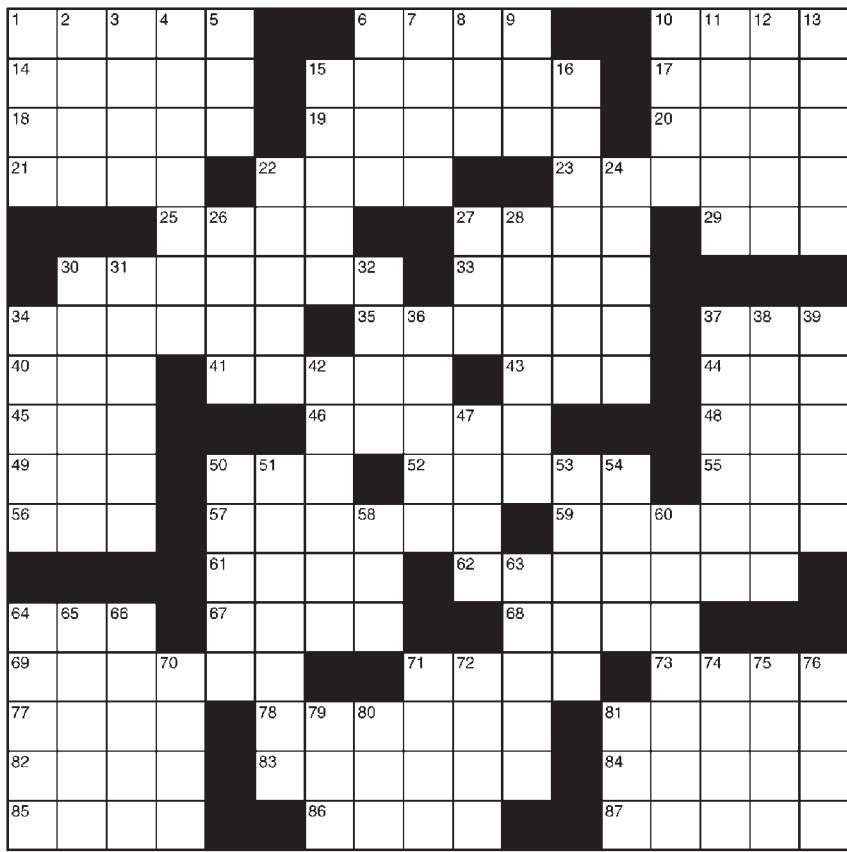

Fresh cooked treats are available for lunch - peameal bacon on a bun, spring rolls, salami and deli meat, honey, wine, artisan and gluten-free breads and baking. Kingcrafts, unique giftware and clothing, and handcrafted cosmetics round out the market. There is something new each week.

The culmination of the Farmers' Market season is the spectacular Field to Table event which is created by chefs Ian and Janet Rodger, using all fresh local harvest. Mark it on your calendars - Oct. 18, 5 to 9 p.m. It sells out quickly.

The King City Farmers' Market is in its third year. The local growers need your support. Tell your friends. Come and savour the experience.

King City Seniors' Centre is a community hub

The King City Seniors Centre was opened in 1988 with the aid of major financial support from the King City Lions Club. The Centre celebrated its 25th anniversary in 2013 with a ceremonial dinner.

This beautiful facility includes two large meeting rooms and a fully equipped kitchen. Over the years, the centre has been available to many community groups including the King City Historical Society, the King City Women's Institute, the Lions Club, and many local, as well as outside, groups of renters.

The famous Kingsmen musical variety show donated the sound system, which was installed by Art Rossiter and the late Ted Monroe. Ted also employed his carpentry skills in building chair rails, a television cabinet, a computer desk and bulletin boards. He was also the centre's first newsletter editor.

The King City Women's Institute met at the Centre for many years until it was disbanded and, as a thank you, they donated a lilac tree for the grounds, which was planted by Hans Neilsen, who later served as chair of the centre's board of management. Lloyd White was the first chairperson, and our current chair, Carol Field, remembers her mother picking out the chinaware for the kitchen. That same china is still being used to dish out our delicious potluck lunches, pancake suppers, celebratory lunches as well as teas, barbecues and corn roasts.

Some of the original seniors, such as Jean Kirby, still attend centre events with their daughters. Granddaughters and grandsons also often assist their grandparents when setting up the room and helping with the meals on special occasions.

The original King City seniors' group was known as the "39'ers." The board of management recently voted to resurrect the catchy nickname and so as of September 2015, all members will once again be identified as a "39'ers."

Though small, the King City Seniors' Centre is a dynamic gathering place for seniors. It is non-denominational as well as non-political. They strive to foster the mind, body and spirit.

Several sports and fitness activities dominate their social programs, such as badminton, bowling, carpet bowling, gentle motion, horseshoes, keep fit, pickleball, shuffleboard and a walking club.

For members who want to develop their creative side, they offer an art class under the direction of an experienced artist, who acts as a guide and teaches the techniques needed so members can produce their own personal masterpieces.

To stimulate their brain power there are bridge, euchre and bid euchre clubs. Some of these programs do not run during the summer, but will start up again in September.

The "39'ers" Social Club meets monthly and offers all members a variety of activities such as fashion shows, summer picnics or barbecues, parties and guest appearances by special guests who conduct presentations on varied topics such as fraud avoidance, financial tips, beekeeping and nutrition.

Inside and out, the centre receives constant care from the many dedicated volunteers. Every program and activity at the centre depends on all of the many volunteers, too numerous to mention.

For members who enjoy travelling, the Travel Club has partnered with Great Canadian Holidays and Coaches to offer worry-free and affordable fun getaway trips. One-day getaways often include shopping at a farmers' market, lunch or dinner at a quaint restaurant and an afternoon or evening at a theatre. In recent years there have been extended annual trips of four or five days to famous cities such as Chicago and Quebec City.

If you are 55+ (no residency rule) and would like to learn more about the centre's activities and what they have to offer, contact any member and arrange a visit. You may join them at one of their Friday morning "Drop-Ins" between 9:30 and 11 a.m.; come to the beginner Bridge class on Wednesdays at 1 p.m., or drop in for an art lesson any Thursday morning at 9:30. While you're there, be sure to pick up a newsletter. Members receive a quarterly newsletter detailing programs, Travel Club news and general information about the goings-on in and around the centre.

You are also welcome to come out to the annual "Membership Sign-Up Day" on Sept. 11 between 10 and 11:30 a.m. and meet new friends, get to know your neighbours and get all the information you need to become a "39'er."

They've come a long way since 1988 when the centre opened, but their vision of "Seniors Enriching the Community" has never faltered. All seniors are welcome to become a "39'er, and remember "there's something for everyone at the Centre."

Open Adoption Sundays 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.

Kingsley Dental practice opens in Nobleton

By Jake Courtepatte

Kingsley Dental officially opened their doors to the public on Saturday, and the newest business in Nobleton is looking forward to getting to know their new neighbours.

“It’s a growing community,” said Dr. Henry Wong. “We’re excited to be here and we hope to meet as many new people as we can.”

Wong, a graduate of the Doctor of Dental Surgery program at the University of Toronto, has been in private practice over the last decade. He is also one of few dentists in Ontario that can provide IV sedation to patients.

The office also comes equipped with the latest dental technology, from sterilization equipment to digital x-rays, which are both faster and safer than their traditional counterpart.

Wong, along with Dr. Karen Chu and Dr. Sharl Mozeg, will oversee the operations and are assisted by both hygienists and denturists.

“You’ll find that our staff is extremely approachable and friendly,” said Wong. “Our goal is to make you comfortable when you visit.”

Located in the No Frills plaza, the office is open six days a week and is accepting new patients.

To find out more check out www.kingsleydental.ca.

By Mark Pavilons

From climate change and ranked ballots, to accessibility and enhancing economic development, mayors from across the province gathered to share notes, at the annual Association of Municipalities of Ontario (AMO) conference in Niagara Falls.

King Mayor Steve Pellegrini joined his colleagues, along with provincial government representatives to exchange information and lobby for change.

“It’s always a great opportunity to network and speak to provincial ministers,” Mayor Pellegrini said.

There were some great speeches by the main provincial party leaders, including Premier Kathleen Wynne, NDP’s Andrea Horwath and PC’s Patrick Brown. Attendees also heard from The Honourable Ted McMeekin, Minister of Municipal Affairs and Housing.

Pellegrini noted there were many good, working sessions and opportunities to network with other municipal leaders.

One area of contention among municipalities has to do with liability insurance. The mayor explained that when something happens on Township-owned land (facility or even a road) the fault lies in the parties involved. However, the Township is obligated to pay the full cost and then sue to get its share reimbursed.

“This is the flaw,” the mayor observed, noting it’s a cumbersome, expensive process. The mayors made their concerns known to Attorney General Madeleine Meilleur, but Pellegrini said she was “not very receptive.”

“It’s an issue and they’re not dealing with it,” he said.

The mayor also attended sessions on conflict of interest, changes to the Municipal Act and more.

Topics addressed at the annual conference included addressing public complaints, ranked ballots, enhancing rural economic development and reducing greenhouse gas emissions, with a presentation by Glen Murray, Minister of Environment and Climate Change.

King City teen races to motocross titles

By JAKE COURTEPATTE

The first time Nick Denniston got behind the handlebars of a motocross bike was at the tender age of three.

Thirteen years later, his experience and dedication is paying off in the form of hardware.

The Country Day School student recently dominated the field in the Parts Canada TransCan Grand National Championships, held Aug. 12-15 in Walton, Ontario.

He spent most of his summer as one of 17 members of an educational training program at the Motopark Motocross Academy in Owen Sound, where he says he learned a lot about diet, exercise, and discipline within the sport. During that training, he ventured to Dechampbeau, Quebec for a three-day national where he earned a Yamaha Factory Ride Award. It inspired him to continue working out diligently, getting on his bike four to five hours a day on the motocross track.

"There's a lot of training that goes into it like any other sport," said Denniston.

Heading into the National Championships, Denniston had qualified himself for the three toughest race classes for junior riders, in Mx1, Mx2, and Mx3. Despite bouts of severe dehydration and heat exhaustion, he managed to place first in both the Mx1 and Mx2 classes, accompanied by a second-place finish in Mx3.

His efforts earned him enough points to win the Bronze Boot, as the top amateur junior and intermediate rider in the tough competition.

"There were a lot of good riders there, a lot of competition, but I was confident and I think that really helped me win."

The work doesn't stop there for the up-and-coming extreme athlete – Denniston is now in training for the motocross mini-Olympics in November, one of the largest U.S. amateur events. Some 3,000 riders from across the continent will be competing for recognition from one of the big factory racing teams, hoping to land sponsorship.

"It should be some really good competition ... I'm looking forward to it and hopefully getting my name out there."

King City's Nick Denniston captured some prestigious hardware in recent motocross events.

Nobleton club holds registration

The Nobleton Skating Club will be holding registration on Wednesday, Sept 9, and Monday, Sept. 14, from 5 to 8 p.m. in the Nobleton Arena lobby. The Nobleton Skating Club has been a part of our community since 1958.

Please visit our website at nobletonskatingclub.com for the full schedule and pricing. Remember, all it takes is a pair of skates!

Welcoming the riders in King were Adam Viola, King Township Fitness Coordinator; John Bell, King Township Recreation Supervisor; Councillor Rob Mezzapelli, Town of Caledon Ward 5; King Mayor Steve Pellegrini; Shelley Petrie, Greenbelt foundation; Yvonne Kaczor, York Region Senior Active Transportation Specialist; Shawn Smith York Region Program Manager, Active & Sustainable Transportation; Jamie Smyth, King Economic Development Officer and Marlane Koehler, executive director, Waterfront Regeneration Trust.

King hosts cyclists in the Great Waterfront Trail Adventure

By Jake Courtepatte

More than 130 cyclists gathered at the Trisan Centre in Schomberg last week to kick off the fourth day of the Great Waterfront Trail Adventure, an epic six-day charity ride to regenerate the GTA's waterfront.

While the name is taken from the longstanding Waterfront Trail, a 1,400-kilometre stretch spanning Lake Erie, Lake Ontario, and the St. Lawrence River, the 2015 edition of the ride took a different route for the first time in its seven-year existence.

The Greenbelt Route, a new 475-kilometre cycling trail spanning seven regions from Northumberland to Niagara, has been gaining some press since signs began going up in its 2-million acres starting in early spring.

Just one month ago, King Township's Parks and Recreation program as well as Mayor Steve Pellegrini erected the 500th sign along the route, on Kettleby Road just West of Keele Street.

In King, Pellegrini says riders can experience the "charm" of the area – the route passes by the old Nobleton Feed Mill, and continues on to Main Street in Schomberg to give cyclists the opportunity to browse some local shops.

The route also offers up some fantastic views of both the Niagara escarpment and the city of Toronto.

Covering between 50 and 150 kilometres each day, the Trail Adventure made its way to Schomberg the night of day three of six, an 82-kilometre journey from Uxbridge that morning. It picked back up bright and early the following day, with breakfast served at the Trisan Centre and a quick word from a few guests.

"There is so much to see in our community, that you might not be able to see just by driving by," said Mayor Pellegrini. "Seeing King at your own pace is a wonderful experience."

Dedication, practice key to skating success for Kitteridge

By Aladin Jarrah

As I sit to write this, the small fan on my desk is working valiantly to keep me cool, and it's failing. The Humidex registers into the 40s, and the air conditioning is working overtime to get some cool air into my small attic study. It's failing, also.

Oh, to be dangling my toes into the water on some distant dock, condensation glistening on my icy glass – but alas that is not your correspondent's lot today. Nor is it an option for King's Lucas Kitteridge and his partner Ekaterina Fedyushchenko, who are hard at work. Where they're working this hot and humid morning, it's so cold they can see their breath. Katia and Lucas are figure skaters.

Many people in their late teens and early 20s spend their summers at cottages, malls, camping, gaming, couch-potatoing (sic) and generally kicking back. Not these two.

The only time Lucas, 22, spends at the mall is for his part-time job at Guess. And 17-year-old Katia's boating experiences are limited to the Instagram posts she sees from her friends and family. These two youngsters are dedicated to their art at a level that belies their years, and it shows. This steamy August morning they did what they do every weekday morning, up before the sun to get to the rink.

"Sometimes at 4:30 you say to yourself 'er, why am I doing this?'" said Kitteridge, "but that goes away once we're on the ice. It's never boring on the ice."

Fedyushchenko agrees. "There's always something to work on, something to practice." She admits, though, that it gets really hard to get up sometimes. "I have, like, 10 alarms set, literally." She holds up her phone to show me the menu of alarms set for the next morning. She has 10. Literally.

She laughs. "I usually hear the 9th and get up on the tenth ... then it's throw on some clothes, eat something and get to the rink to meet Lucas. We skate till about 11, 11:30 every day."

Most skaters take at least some of the summer off. The rink where they practice most of the time, in Barrie, has now closed for the summer, so Lucas and Katia go to the rink at York University instead, not missing a beat.

Even though both Katia and Lucas have close ties to King (Lucas grew up in Kettleby and Katia was a student at the Country Day School), the pair met at the rink in Barrie. Both their partners had just quit, and both were on the hunt for someone new to skate with. Once they took to the ice together, they decided quickly that they were a good fit. When I asked them what they meant by that, they simultaneously chorused a single word – "trust."

"We have faith in each other," said Kitteridge, "and I'll always have Katia's back. If it looks like we're going to get in trouble I'll throw myself under her ..." he chuckles, she smiles. "It's comfortable, easy skating together. It's not a chore."

They have skated together for just over a year, but to watch them you'd think that they were at it much longer. They anticipate each other's moves, gliding across the ice with practiced ease that makes it all look effortless. These two youngsters have applied themselves completely to their chosen path, building their lives around skating.

Lucas is a BA undergrad at York, and has shifted to a part-time schedule at school to accommodate the skating. Katia has just finished high school and is going to study Business at Rottman in Toronto. She has designed her course-load to work around skating, too.

Neither of them are anything but enthusiastic; they are grateful for the support, financial and otherwise, they get from both their families, and the work that their trainers, choreographers, costume designers and head coach David Islam do to help this uniquely talented pair flourish.

And flourish they have. In the last 12 months they have skated in several national and international competitions, where they skate for England, Lucas's father's native country. They have garnered accolades and recognition, topped this year by their crowning as Junior Ice Dance Champions of Great Britain and Northern Ireland. Later this summer they will be competing in Sheffield, England and at the Junior Grand Prix in Spain.

This is their last season as Juniors, then they enter the world of Senior skating, where the competition is even stiffer. The pair hopes to find some sponsors to help them move forward with their promising career. They have their eyes set on competing for England at the next Olympics.

How do you get to Korea? Practice, lots of practice.

Event spotlights local trails

Michael Dalzolle of Toronto was one of the cyclists on the route. He said he has visited King before, and was looking forward to seeing it more up-close during the day's ride.

"It seems like a really nice community, a lot of greenery, really in touch with nature."

Cyclists got a taste of the local goods at their first stop at the Grackle Coffee Company on Main, before heading out to the popular 35-kilometre Caledon Trailway. The route took riders through Palgrave, Caledon East, and Inglewood, eventually settling in Georgetown for the evening. The ride was completed on Friday in Niagara.

St. Paul's Church

Through the summer months, the Youth Group will meet every other Friday. Check here for details or contact our Youth Leader Taylor Scott at scottie_tay@yahoo.ca.

Join us Sunday, Aug. 30 at 10 a.m. as Jeff continues his series entitled "The Missing Peace". Jeff's message this week - Peace With Yourself. FirstLink child care (for children 3 years of age and younger) is provided during the gathering and our Summertime Kidz-Konnection and NextStep Program (for children ages 4 to 11) takes place at the same time.

Jeff has a blog and he records his weekly messages there after worship each Sunday. Anyone interested in listening to his messages can go to www.passionatelyhis.com to hear them.

For more information about ANY of our activities or events, please contact the church office at 905-859-0843 or visit our website at www.stpaulsnobleton.ca.

St. Mary's Church

The Harvest Moon Gala takes place Friday, Oct. 2 at DaVinci Banquet Hall, 5732 Highway 7, Woodbridge. Reception at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $100 for adults ($40 tax receipt will be issued).

Contact Linda at 905-859-4958, Robert at 905-859-8306, or Parish Office. Proceeds for St. Mary's mortgage fund.

Nobleton United By Nancy Hopkinson

On Sunday, Aug. 30, Nobleton United Church will have its regular service time of 11:15 a.m. in Nobleton at 6076 King Rd, west of Highway 27, north side, and our sister church, Schomberg United, will have its regular service time at 9:30 a.m. at the Manor. Our friendly minister Brian Nicholson does both services.

Church is a lively place where we sing and clap and really have a good time while we consider faith questions, such as how would Jesus like us to treat our neighbours?

We have changed the date of September's Messy Church. Normally we have it on the second Tuesday of every month. However, the second Tuesday of September is the first day of school. We moved Messy Church to the following Tuesday, Sept. 15. If you have not tried Messy Church, you will have a treat. There are choices of activities that appeal to various ages. The activities always depend on the theme.

September's theme is "Jesus is the true vine." There are always cookies in the theme to decorate and then eat. The story time is at 6 pm, followed by dinner at 6:15 p.m. We always have raw veggies and dip, and fruit, as well as some protein to complete the meal ... meatballs, chicken nuggets, lasagna, ham. I am not sure right now what that will be. When the meal is done, you can do more activities or just socialize. The parents and grandparents like to chat. The kids like to play. This is a good time of food, faith and fun and it is free, as Nobleton United provides the funding as an outreach activity.

Sunday, Sept. 13 at 11:15 a.m. is Rally Day and there will be lunch after the service.

On Thursday Sept. 24, we are having a Harvest Dinner with chicken and all the fixings and dessert. Tickets will be available soon. You might want to call Helen Bible right now at 905-859-3924 to reserve your place as the space is limited. This is a sit-down dinner with white tablecloths and ample time to chat to friends and neighbours.

We will be having a Joint Anniversary Service with Schomberg United on Oct. 25 at 11:15 a.m. in Nobleton. At that time, we will celebrate Nobleton's cross (the Baguley family created it), and the various stained glass windows of our church. The late Jean Boynton donated the installation of our first two stained glass windows in memory of her husband Carl. We also have a choir window, a quilting window, a farming window and a three generations of women window. We will also celebrate Schomberg United's history. We hope that our Nobleton and Schomberg communities will want to attend to admire these windows and the cross and to celebrate our histories with us. There will be a lunch afterwards.

On Saturday, Oct. 31, we will be having our Craft and Bake Sale. There will be a BBQ (weather permitting) and a lunch room (no matter the weather). We are always looking for helpers for this event, so if you are able to help out, please contact Fran Bones at 905-859-3819.

If you want to know more about our church, visit nobletonunitedchurch.com.

Registration for skating club and Guides

Nobleton Skating Club

As the summer draws to a close, that means it's time to get back to the rink! The Nobleton Skating Club will be holding registration on Wednesday, Sept 9, and Monday, Sept. 14, from 5 to 8 p.m. in the Nobleton Arena lobby. The Nobleton Skating Club has been a part of our community since 1958, and the club has seen many skaters pass through its doors.

There's no better place to start your skater. We offer Canskate (learn to skate) classes on Mondays at 5:30 p.m. and Saturday mornings at 9 a.m. The skaters are quickly assessed on the first day and placed into groups based on age and ability level. Group sizes are a maximum of 10 skaters, and skaters are with a certified coach the entire time.

Hockey helmets are mandatory for Canskate. Canskate sessions begin Sept. 28, and spaces are limited, so please be sure to register. The Nobleton Skating Club also offers Pre-Power and Power skating on Fridays from 5 to 6 p.m. as well as an Adult Learn class. The adult class runs Saturday mornings during Canskate, so it's a great opportunity for parents to learn at the same time as their children.

Our STARSkate (figure skating) sessions are offered Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays. Our STARSkate sessions begin Monday, Sept 14.

Please visit our website at nobleton-skatingclub.com for the full schedule and pricing. Remember, all it takes is a pair of skates!

Girl Guide Fall registration

We are planning another exciting year of Guiding in Nobleton and all girls and women are welcome. Guiding is a dynamic organization for girls and women that teaches and promotes leadership and respect of self, others, community and the environment through games, crafts, songs, excursions and camping. Guiding is a uniformed organization where Sparks (ages 5 & 6) Brownies (ages 7 & 8) Guides (ages 9-11) Pathfinders (ages 12-14) meet weekly or bi-weekly. All meetings take place locally in Nobleton on Tuesday nights from September through June.

Registration can be done online at www.guidesontario.org. The energetic leadership teams look forward to an exciting year with your daughter.

We are actively recruiting adult women volunteers so please share this opportunity with other women who might be interested such as co-workers, neighbours, friends and relatives. You do not need to have a daughter to be involved. For more information please contact Debbie Williamson at 1-877-323-4545, ext. 6405.

Quilters at Nobleton United Church

The quilters meet usually on Wednesday mornings at 8:30 a.m. at Nobleton United Church. Anyone in the community who likes to sew in a group setting is welcome. The quilters bring their own lunches and enjoy a tea or coffee break together at noon and then continue until about 2 p.m. The time is flexible. The quilters do custom work, and quilts for sale at Nobleton United's Annual Bake and Craft Sale in late October. They have also made and delivered about a dozen lap quilts to seniors' nursing homes in the area recently. For more, contact Fran Bones for more information at 416-573-3819.
