

Former councillor says zoning bylaw obsolete

The zoning bylaw for the Township of King adopted in 1974 is obsolete. It is time for it to be updated. We heard this loud and clear during the public consultations held for the Sustainable King Plan. To that end, the Township is scheduled to commence the update of the Nobleton zoning bylaw in 2014. Public consultations will be held as part of updating the zoning bylaws in each town to provide an opportunity for community input. The authors of the current bylaw did not envision the changes to planning regulations or contemplate sustainable building design. As vice-chair of the Sustainable King Committee, I strongly support updating our zoning bylaw and community plans to ensure they are respectful of our existing community while providing guidance for sustainable new development.
