Hands off the gas tax, King tells Ottawa

By Mark Pavilons Editor

King Township is urging Ottawa to maintain local funding, so municipalities can meet the pressures of development.

Municipalities like King are facing uncertainty in the future of critically important federal infrastructure funding.

Mayor Steve Pellegrini put forth a notice of motion at Monday's council meeting, asking the feds to maintain the Canada Community Building Fund (CCFB). Formally known as the Federal Gas Tax Fund, it provides more than $2 billion in annual capital in infrastructure funding directly to municipalities through a predictable allocation mechanism to help municipalities deliver direct results for residents by building, maintaining and renewing core public infrastructure, including local roads, water, public transit, community, cultural and recreational facilities.

In essence, the mayor is asking the feds to keep their hands off the gas tax funding and to "stay in their own lane."

In his council "rant," the mayor said governments have their fingers in everything and they should stop interfering in areas of municipal responsibility.

He pointed out that King has no growth targets and has roughly 2,500 approved units (towns, singles, condos) but shovels aren't hitting the ground.

The feds are threatening to cut off funding if municipalities don't meet targets.

"When did they become the building industry?" he asked. He added that government says they need a conversation, but they haven't consulted any municipalities on this particular issue.

He urged the other levels of government to ask those who know what's gong on their communities (municipal governments).

Selfless community spirit and connection to the land on full display during tree planting at Budweth Park

By Jim Stewart

A tree-planting initiative co-sponsored by LEAF (Local Enhancement & Appreciation of Forests) and King Township, attracted over 200 participants to windswept Budweth Park on Sunday afternoon. Sarah Halonen, Senior Stewardship Coordinator for LEAF, welcomed the assembly of ardent, budding arborists and made an emphatic case for augmenting the urban forest with native species. Hundreds of potted units spanned the northwest corner of Budweth Park and Halonen reminded the planters in jest that "no one leaves until all 500 trees and shrubs are planted. Our motto today is 'Quality over Quantity' so these native species thrive for hundreds of years in Budweth Park."

After the courageous crews selected their shovels laid out methodically behind Halonen and fanned out to the planting seminars, the three-year member of LEAF spoke of the importance of tree-planting in York Region: "The best part of today's event is to engage the community and encourage them to look after public spaces. These planting events help to increase the tree canopy and create space for diverse species to thrive. It's our hope that people will take what they have learned today back to their homes and share their knowledge with their friends, family, and neighbors.'

Included among the friends, family, and neighbors assembled at the southwest Nobleton park were members of the Alfred Budweth Family after whom the Oliver Emmerson Avenue landmark is named. Darlene Stafford, daughter of Alfred Budweth, provided personal insights into the significance of the event: "It's a community event and it means so much to our family, especially my 90year old mom Margarete. The Town of Nobleton meant a ton to my dad and he gave fully to the community. He was a farmer and this event connects the family members and the tree planters that are here today to the land that he loved."

Alfred Budweth, who passed away in 2014, immigrated to Canada from East Prussia in 1949 at the age of 20, began life modestly as a fisherman in Port Dover, Ontario, but was lured to the land and a 100-acre farm in what was then the tiny town of Nobleton during the 1960s. The purchase of the Nobleton Feed Mill in 1978 allowed Budweth "to combine his passion for agriculture with his strong head for business." The local farmer-businessman served sever- to "the protection and improvement of al terms on King Council and Budweth

Park was named in his honor in a 2021 ceremony.

Alf Budweth, Jr, was busy planting native species and took a brief break from digging to note that the big turnout meant a great deal to his family: "It's heartwarming to see. This site where we're planting today was part of the old Goodfellow Farm that we worked for years."

The Budweth Family's close connection to the land was evident in our exchanges, as was the dedicated crew of skilled arborists from LEAF who showed the participants how to plant trees and shrubs. The plants lined up by the LEAF and King Township crew was a cornucopia of native species: 200 trees including balsam fir, eastern white cedar, white pine, white spruce, basswood, black cherry, bur oak, hackberry, paper birch, red oak, silver maple, sugar maple, and trembling aspen; 300 shrubs including American hazelnut, black chokeberry, common ninebark, elderberry, fragrant sumac, grey dogwood, highbush cranberry, nannyberry, pussy willow, red osier dogwood, serviceberry, and snowberry.

As Halonen noted in her greeting to participants, "These species have thrived in this region for thousands of years and they have adapted successfully to the local climate and soil conditions."

Notably, a group of youthful planters resplendent in the light blue-hoodies of the 12U Aurora-King Jays rep baseball team - assembled distinctively on the northern perimeter of the park, focused intently on the instructions of their LEAF arborist, and worked diligently at their tasks as this group of civic-minded teenagers improved the urban landscape for generations to come.

According to their Head Coach Glen Nerona, the lessons off the baseball diamond are as significant as those learned between the white lines: "It's important that they understand the importance of giving back to the community through these activities.'

It was this spirit of selfless community improvement and connection to the land that permeated dozens of planting crews assembled at Budweth Park on Sunday afternoon. This Earth Week activity was a fine tribute to a devoted family man, farmer, businessman, and local councillor after whom Budweth Park is named. It also served as an active and timely response to the challenges of Climate Change in keeping with the goals of LEAF which is dedicated our urban forest."

The Budweth Family was out in full, multigenerational force for the treeplanting at Bud-

Baby Boomers have become society's wise 'elders'

"If future generations are to remember us more with gratitude than sorrow, we must achieve more than just the miracles of technology. We must also leave them a glimpse of the world as it was created, not just as it looked when we got through with it."

Respect for our elders seems to be waning.

When I was young, this was a given, an unwritten rule.

As we Baby Boomers age and wade into retirement, our accomplishments, and legacies should be recognized, not ignored.

Okay, I realize that respect has to be earned, but most of us born in the 1960s have become society's wise "elders."

Recycling bins are needed

The following letter, send to King Township, was submitted to the Sentinel.

I am curious as to why there are no recycling collection containers at memorial park by the baseball diamonds, tennis courts, the playground or the covered seated area.

I am always walking through here with my dog on our daily walks and constantly carry a grocery bag so that I can pickup plastic bottles and other discarded containers such as beer cans, etc. I am extremely disappointed that persons walking through here have the audacity to simply throw these things on the ground but if there were recycling bins and not just garbage bins they might consider using them.

I have also witnessed vehicles in the parking lot by the tennis courts cleaning out their vehicles and discarding their garbage on the ground. Is there any possibility of putting up warning/bylaw signs advising this can't be done?

As the weather gets nicer and traffic picks up in these areas this problem will only get worse.

Canada moves closer to point of no return when it comes to our national debt

There's an old bit of wisdom courtesy of Ernest Hemingway that you go broke two ways: first gradually, then suddenly.

With last week's federal budget, Canada is inching closer to the sudden phase of fiscal disaster

The Canadian government projects another five years of deficit spending and over a hundred billion dollars added to our already crushing debt. Worst of all, there is no end in sight to government borrowing, and no plan in place to repay that money. It reminds you of the old German proverb: "He who is quick to borrow is slow to pay."

Last week's budget also projects that public debt charges – the interest we're paying on the debt – will climb from just over $54 billion currently to nearly $65 billion five years from now, a 20 percent increase.

Ten cents of every dollar of revenue the government brings in is now going straight to interest payments, according to TD Bank, and those interest payments are eating up a bigger and bigger portion of the budget. What's worse, for the first time ever, interest payments on the debt exceed the amount of money the government spends annually on healthcare.

A Fraser Institute report on government debt published earlier this year had this grim warning: "Rising government debt has severe consequences for Canadians as more and more resources are directed toward interest payments and away from programs that help families or improve Canada's economic competitiveness."

The Principles of an Economic Charter of Rights

Although the mushrooming federal debt is cause for concern, when you start adding in other levels of debt, it becomes even more

Combined federal and provincial net debt is projected to come in around $2.18 trillion in 2023/24. Meanwhile, total debt in Canada – household, corporate and government debt at all levels – is now around 341 percent of total GDP. In other words, our total debt is more than three times what we produce each year.

The consequences of the build-up of debt extend to all corners of the economy: our runaway debt stunts investment, hobbles economic productivity and lowers living standards.

Earlier this year, University of Calgary economist Trevor Tombe said, "we should be thinking about the longer-term future of federal finances and start making difficult choices, because the longer we wait, the harder it will be."

Far from making some difficult decisions, the federal government just made our financial future a lot harder – and probably a lot more painful when the sudden day of reckoning finally arrives and jolts us from our sleep.

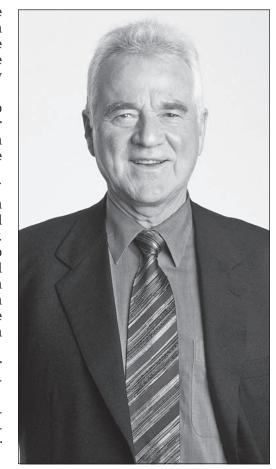

Many things in life are not fair. One of the unfairest of all is that the older generation leaves all of the debts it has incurred to the youngest generation, asking them to pay the bill for many of the goods and services they have never even enjoyed or made us of.

It's ironic that a budget which aims to make life easier and more affordable for young Canadians has instead placed upon them a heavy burden that they will never be able to throw off in their lifetimes.

But a national Economic Charter of Rights and Responsibilities, which I've been strongly advocating for the past year, would get Canada back on the straight and narrow. The charter would require government to balance the budget and reduce our national debt by 5 percent per year over 20 years with the result that we would be debt-free within two decades. We'd wipe the slate clean for the young Canadians and give them a shot at a better quality of life.

To learn more about how the Charter could help turn our economy around, contact info@economiccharter.ca.

Think twice before tearing down

not be destroyed.

The land that was donated years ago for the park at Doctors Lane and the King City arena should stay as a park.

The traffic in King City is unbearable and is only going to get worse with all the development happening around the core of King City. The plan to put an office building on the corner of King and Keele using the old house is not well though out.

I understand there will be no parking and the answer to this dilemma was that people could use transit. Let's face it, nobody in King Township uses public transit.

We already have a massive building going up where the old plaza/township office was. King also has the adult living building which was built so close to the road and creats an eyesore as you drive East on King Road towards the four corners. Nobody is caring about the look or the heritage of this village. The township is only looking at the profit development will bring.

We have spent millions of dollars rebuilding a library that did not need to be rebuilt. But when it was rebuilt, it was built with materials that are not indigenous to this climate and have to be treated yearly, costing thousands of dollars. The roof leaked and they had a leak in one of the balconies before the new Library even opened. Who pays for this but the taxpayers.

With regards to Doctors Lane, where is the Lions barn going to be moved to? This is a heritage building for it is over 200 years old. This building is dated on the bulletin board that is by the snack bar in the old arena on Doctors Lane. A lot of the new residents don't realize this because the barn has been wrapped in aluminum siding. Hopefully there are enough of us old-timers that will remember. This barn has been the centre of many community events such as auctions by the Lions. The Lions club stores important items in this barn during the winter. The Lions club has been kind enough to let the King City Skating Club store their props for ice shows that happen every two years.

The land that was donated years ago These are vital buildings that should

The township is building this new Community Centre facility, that I know will be lovely but it already has issues. There is no storage for user groups. Hockey and figure skating have equipment that they need to use for their programs. Without storage they cannot run efficient programs.

Also, I am no engineer, but owning a house and cottage I know the importance of a sloping roof away from the building in order to make sure you don't have any leaks. The new Community Centre facility has a sloping roof that goes directly back towards the building. It might not leak the first few years but I am sure it will eventually leak, costing the taxpayers more money.

I can't believe the Township allowed this to happen.

Please leave Doctors Lane alone and Fisher Street. Find some other place to develop. Leave the property around this area as a park.

The old arena should be saved as well. This building could be used for camps, instead of letting the summer camps run out of the new facility. Another way to use the old building is indoor pickle ball, ball hockey, basket ball.

With the direction the Township is taking would it not be wise and more economical to save an older building and refurbish it, rather then have to build new.

We are only going to be needing more of these types of buildings with all the new growth. This would be a much better way to develop Doctors Lane.

King City does not need more 3, 4 and 5 storey buildings. They are just an eyesore. Traffic is horrible and the town has lost its small town charm.

I grew up in this town; my parents and grandparents were part of this town. I am sure my grandfather Jack Tanner would be rolling over in his grave at the lack of consideration to the heritage of King City.

Climate change, water and ice are inextricably linked

By David Suzuki

Canadian business consultant and climate science denier Patrick Moore once claimed we shouldn't worry about melting glaciers.

"Why are glaciers perceived as something important?" he asked at a 2007 agricultural forum in Regina. "They are just big globs of frozen water. Nothing grows on them, they are basically dead zones. When the glaciers retreat, trees come in ... and a healthy ecosystem re-emerges. Ice and frost are the enemies of life."

It's hard to tell whether people such as Moore are ignorant enough to believe what they say or whether they're just counting on their audiences to be uninformed enough to buy it.

As anyone with a basic understanding of science knows, glaciers are incredibly important.

Glaciers, ice caps and ice sheets (which are types of glaciers) store enormous amounts of nutrient-rich water close to 70 per cent of the world's fresh water, according to the U.S. Geological Survey. Under normal conditions, they release it slowly enough that their size is maintained by snowfall and freezing temperatures. As the U.S. National Snow and Ice Data Center points out, glaciers provide drinking water, irrigate crops and help generate hydroelectric power.

Rapidly melting glaciers and ice sheets and caps will exacerbate water shortages and cause sea levels to rise. Scientists estimate that glacier melt has caused 21 per cent of current sea level rise. Large amounts of cold fresh water entering warmer ocean water can even affect ocean currents.

Ice sheets and glaciers also reflect solar radiation back into space, keeping the planet cooler, while darker, exposed areas absorb more heat. So, warmer temperatures cause ice and snow to melt, which in turn causes heating to increase. It's known as a "feedback loop."

Of course, glacier melt isn't the only climate-related factor affecting global water supplies. "Climate change is primarily a water crisis," the United Nations says. "We feel its impacts through worsening floods, rising sea levels, shrinking ice fields, wildfires and droughts.'

As less snow accumulates in mountains, less water flows into streams and rivers, while reduced precipitation contributes to drought. As drought afflicts some areas, flooding is also increasing, thanks to human activities such as deforestation coupled with heavier precipitation over shorter periods. This, in turn, contributes to water and land contamination and topsoil loss and other agricultural damage.

Water shortages aren't just bad news for all life that relies on drinking water to survive, including humans; they're bad news for agriculture. Global food production needs to increase to meet growing demand, and crops need water. As George Monbiot notes in the Guardian, "Already, agriculture accounts for 90% of the world's freshwater use. We have pumped so much out of the ground that we've changed the Earth's spin. The water required to meet grow-

Water levels in reservoirs are also lowering turbines. British Columbia, Manitoba and Quebec get most of their electricity from hydro, but as Andrew Nikiforuk points out in the Tyee, "In order to make up for shortfalls as drought lowered water levels, power utilities in these three provinces switched to fossil fuel-powered stations or paid large sums for electricity imports in 2023, a calamitous year of wildfires and extreme heat. In fact, almost every major hydro producer in Canada has reported major financial losses in 2023-24 due to low water conditions."

Because hydro power supplies about one-sixth of global electricity and is currently the main form of low-carbon generation, with substantial increases expected, lower water levels could pose a serious problem for energy and climate.

Water in all its forms — including ice and frost — is life. Those who deny this are willing to risk human health and survival for the sake of the dying but still obscenely profitable fossil fuel industry.

The UN points out, "Sustainable water management is central to building the resilience of societies and ecosystems and to reducing carbon emissions." Above all, that means tackling the causes of climate disruption: burning fossil fuels, destruction of forests, wetlands and other carbon sinks, and unsustainable agricultural practices, especially livestock farming.

We all need clean air and water, healthy soils and biodiversity to survive. No amount of denial or corporate propaganda will change that.

Money funds infrastructure

What's needed, he stressed, is "supportive housing." In 1992, the federal government stopped its federal co-operative housing program. This program has built roughly 60,000 home for low and moderate-income Canadians.

Councillor David Boyd, who seconded the mayor's motion, noted King relies on this funding, which Treasurer Peggy Tollett said amounts to roughly $880,000 annually. This money funds infrastructure such as roads, bridges and culverts.

Research commissioned by the Federation of Canadian Municipalities (FCM) has estimated that the average cost of the municipal infrastructure required to support new housing development is in the range of $107,000 per unit. Municipalities are facing soaring costs for infrastructure projects due to the inflation of construction costs, particularly since 2020, without corresponding growth in revenue.

Canada is experiencing record pop-1.27 million increase in the population eration and endorsement.

According to the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation (CMHC), there must be at least 3.5 million additional homes built by 2030 to restore affordability.

The municipal sector will be required to support the growing population, predominantly through delivery of infrastructure projects and service offerings to local residents.

Along with asking the CCBF be maintained, the motion also calls on Ottawa to convene provinces, territories, and municipalities to negotiate an infrastructure funding framework to enable the success of Canada's longterm growth.

The council resolution will be circulated to the Federal Minister of Housing, Infrastructure and Communities, the Provincial Minister of Infrastructure, the Provincial Minister of Municipal Affairs and Housing, Stephen Lecce, MPP, King-Vaughan, Caroline Mulroney, MPP, York-Simcoe, and Anna ulation growth, demonstrated by the Roberts, MP, King-Vaughan, for consid-

Ontario investing $289,000 in youth stewardship of Lake Simcoe

The Ontario government is investing over $289,000 in three projects that are engaging local youth and community members in environmental stewardship activities like workshops, field trips and other educational opportunities focused on restoring the Lake Simcoe watershed.

"As a mother and someone who has lived in the Barrie area for many years, I am grateful to have a partner like the Orillia Museum of Art and History to help inspire the next generation and encourage them to take a more active role in the health of Lake Simcoe," said Andrea Khanjin, Minister of the Environment, Conservation and Parks. "Together with our community partners, we are making important progress on actions to keep the lake and its watershed clean and healthy not only for residents today, but for future generations."

Through these projects, students and residents in the Lake Simcoe watershed are learning how to design rain gardens, pollinator gardens and use native plants to reduce erosion and restore shorelines. Following the success of its first plant giveaway, this spring the museum will provide participants with native species of trees, shrubs, flowers and grasses to grow at school, home and in community gardens.

Over the past year and a half, the museum has hosted 10 workshops at improved water quality. Regent Park Public School in Orillia and two field trips to local gardens and parks to educate students and community members about how they can protect and restore shorelines around Lake Simcoe.

Funding for these projects is part of the over $37 million the government including the Ministry of the Environment, Conservation and Parks, Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry, and Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs - has invested since 2018 to improve the health of Lake Simcoe and its watershed under the Lake Simcoe Protection Plan. This investment includes the $24 million announced in the 2024 Ontario Budget for the innovative phosphorus reduction project to help reduce phosphorus discharges from the Holland River into Lake Sim-

Lake Simcoe is the largest inland lake in southern Ontario, more than twice the size of the City of Hamilton. It is also one of the most important and heavily fished inland lakes in the prov-

Some of the signs of recovery in the Lake Simcoe watershed include:

A 50 per cent reduction in phosphorous from sewage treatment plants entering the watershed.

Reduced algae in the lake, leading to Recent instances of successful natural reproduction of cold-water fish species like Lake Whitefish, Burbot and Cisco.

"Having been so involved with our local students in the past, the Orillia Museum of Art and History (OMAH) is an ideal partner for these projects, and I commend them for their dedication. Through today's announcement, this partnership will continue to empower local youth and engage community members in meaningful projects aimed at restoring and preserving our precious watershed. This investment not only enriches our environment but also fosters a sense of collective responsibility and pride in safeguarding our natural resources now and for the future," said Jill Dunlop, MPP for Simcoe North.

St. Andrew's students aim to raise $50K for Jumpstart Charities

Grade 12 students at St. Andrew's College involved in the McEwen Leadership Program will culminate their leadership journey with a lofty fundraising challenge supporting Jumpstart Charities.

SpringSmash is a comprehensive fundraising event that will take place on campus on Thursday, May 16, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. It will be a sports and festival activity event for the entire student body, with students able to participate in games of basketball, flag football, soccer, ultimate Frisbee, Pickleball, Tchoukball, and road hockey to celebrate their fundraising efforts.

The goal is to raise $50,000 for Jumpstart, where funds go toward providing local youth opportunities to participate in sports. Now in its 13th year, the St. Andrew's community has given generously to this cause, donating $230,000 over the lifetime of the campaign toward opportunities for children to participate in sports.

This year's event is sponsored by Green Leaf Developments, Orangetheory Fitness Newmarket-Aurora, Elevation Athletics, Redback Boots, Sky Service, and Interline Wholesale Hardware.

The SpringSmash campaign launched on April 8 with a kick-off assembly to generate excitement for the cause. During the assembly, students were informed about their impact on Jumpstart Charities and how their generosity helps get kids off the sidelines and into a sport. They were then taught about the importance of philanthropy and strategies to successfully fundraise for a cause.

Singer sparkles on Canada's Got Talent reality show

By Mark Pavilons Editor

There's no shortage of talent in King. King City native Sai Juttukonda was a hit on Canada's Got Talent, which aired April 16.

Juttukonda performed a cover of "Jealous" a ballad by Labrinth, which received praise from all four judges. Lilly Singh found her on TikTok and invited her to audition on the CGT stage.

Singh discovered 27-year-old Sai on TikTok and invited her to audition for the judges in Niagara Falls.

Juttukonda, whose parents live in King City, said she feels blessed to have gotten the call. It's the culmination of years of singing and something she always dreamed of.

She noted she never sang competitively or in front or large crowds. She admitted to being quite nervous, and suffered from stagefright, but there was no way she was going to let that stand in her way. In her performance, she seemed quite comfortable and natural on stage. She does admit most of it was just a blur and doesn't remember all the details.

Well, the rest of the world does.

Trish Stratus said she was blessed to have this job for "moments like this. I'm excited to see what's next for you."

This is your real, true calling, said Kardinal Offishall.

Howie Mandel said he will follow her journey, which he's sure will go a long way.

Singh said she's happy to be part of Sai's journey, and gave her the first yes. "Your life is legit about to change!" Singh said.

She took to the stage to thank Sai, noting "you killed it. Never doubt yourself again."

Juttukonda said she chose the song because it was a good fit for her and her deeper register.

The audition allowed her to get out of her comfort zone, noting the experience was a lot of fun. She's still trying to wrap her head around the almost celebrity status.

She's received calls and emails from many people, including former classmates and teachers. Her parents have also been inundated with congratulations.

They deserve it, as much as Sai her-

Her parents have been strong supporters of her singing her entire life. But they encouraged her to go to school and get a good job first.

Sai works in cybersecurity and noted her parents didn't even know she had a TikTok account. That's where Singh discovered her and put her in the national spotlight.

Nobleton girl creates dog treats to offset trip costs

By Aladin Jarrah

Mayha Carroll seems like your average 10-year-old. She goes to school, does her homework, and goes to Facade Academy of the Arts in Vaughan for some extra-curricular creative fun.

Mayha loves to create art. Her work, attitude and determination were noticed by Creative Director Mina Spremulli and it piqued her interest. She put Mayha's name forward for a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to spend a week behind the scenes with Disney artists and professionals in Florida to learn their craft firsthand. Mayha was thrilled to be nominated, and over the moon when she discovered that she was one of just 10 kids accepted into this unique program.

But there was a catch. The trip did not include transportation or accommodations; that had to be provided by Mayha's family. She knew it would cost her family a lot of money to go and wanted to find a way to contribute to the expense. But how?

Mayha was determined, and her family were willing to do anything to help her in attaining her goal. One day, at Bulk Barn with her mom Jennifer, she spied a set of three bone-shaped cookie cutters. A light bulb went off in her head. She was going to make and sell home-made dog treats to raise as much money as possible.

Her mother, ever supportive, bought her the cutters, and Mayha proceeded to develop a plan. She came up with a simple and healthy recipe of pumpkin, natural peanut butter, cinnamon and whole wheat flour. She packaged her dog cookies, which were heartily tested and approved by the family husky Diesel, and started selling them.

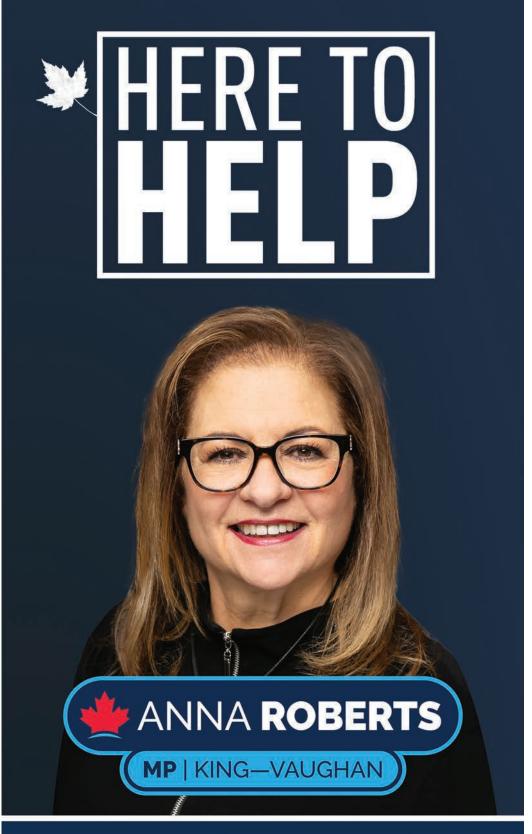

The tight-knit community of Nobleton responded, and her first batch sold out. Her mom took the opportunity to teach a good business lesson: "I bought the first batch of ingredients, but now you have to use some of your profits to buy the ingredients for the next batch," she said. Mayha rose to the occasion and made another batch of cookies, which she is selling in three sizes at $5 a bag. So far, she has raised $500 towards her goal, and is determined to raise enough money to make this family trip a reality

The dog treats can be obtained by emailing jsmcarroll@yahoo.com. Mayha, and your dog, will thank you.

Aurora-King 12U Jays plant trees, show teamwork

By Jim Stewart

Sunday afternoon's tree-planting initiative at chilly Budweth Park, co-sponsored by LEAF (Local Enhancement & Appreciation of Forests) and King Township, was a tremendous success as 500 native trees and shrubs were added to York Region's urban canopy. Among the courageous planting crews who braved the wintry April conditions was a flock of civic-minded Aurora-King 12U Blue Jays who took a break from Spring Training to participate in Earth Week activities in Nobleton.

Aurora-King 12U Head Coach Glen Nerona took a brief respite from the rigors of tree-planting and stressed the vital importance of community service for his young charges: "We're here to serve our communities of King and Aurora. This is also an important team-building event to get the guys together off the baseball diamond before the season begins. We want our players to build team unity and be dedicated to

The amiable coach discussed the most important lesson to be derived from Sunday afternoon's Earth Week event: "It's really important that they give back to the communities through these activities."

The engaging baseball coach and dedicated classroom teacher stressed the significance of skills that connect to both baseball and life outside the ballpark: "The kids are as focused and disciplined in planting trees today as they are during our activities in our winter facility and on the diamond. We insist that they conduct themselves this way on and off the field."

The focus and discipline to which Coach Nerona referred were evident as the group of twelve ballplayers – bedecked in their light blue Aurora-King Jays hoodies as an expression of team unity – assembled distinctively on the northern sector of Budweth Park, listened intently to the instructions of their LEAF arborist, and worked diligently at their digging, planting, and mulching tasks.

It was inspirational to witness this group of polite, civic-minded teenagers improving the urban forest canopy of Nobleton for generations to come. According to Nerona and his coaching staff, the lessons off the baseball diamond will contribute to their success on the diamond: "Our season starts in May and we've been working out at the Hallmark Facility for months. For today, our goal is to plant 100 trees and shrubs."

The 12U team's lofty arboreal aim was well on the way to fruition as units of three Jays descended on the prepped lands to plant the native shrubs and trees provided by LEAF and the Township of King including balsam fir, eastern white cedar, white pine, white spruce, basswood, black cherry, bur oak, hackberry, paper birch, red oak, silver maple, sugar maple, trembling aspen, American hazelnut, black chokeberry, common ninebark, elderberry, fragrant sumac, grey dogwood, highbush cran-

Provincial, national play for curlers

By Shellee Morning

King Curling Club was well represented that last weekend both at the 2024 Silver Tankard Provincial Championships in Oshawa and the 2-Person Stick National Championships in Toronto. This was a first time entry for both the players and for the Club at such a prestigious and high calibre

Larry Sheardown and Jim Colvin entered the National 2-Person Stick event that took place at the Leaside Curling Club in Toronto. 47 teams from across the Nation participated in a 5 Pool 7 game format to determine the Canadian National 2-Person Stick Champion. The team consists of 2 players where both use a stick to deliver the rock, and sweeping is not allowed between the 2 hog lines. All games are 6 ends in duration and not the traditional 8.

The games were tough and Sheardown/Colvin looking for their first win, handed Team Manitoba who had a perfect record, their first lost. Strategy and perseverance was on their side for the well-earned 4-3 victory. Winning a game at a National event is a skilful and impressive accomplishment. Sheardown/Colvin represented King with pride and is proud of their experience. The chance to represent your club at a National event is an accomplishment in itself and is something an athlete never forgets and will treasure the experience forever.

Silver Tankard

King Curling was also represented in the Silver Tankard Provincial Qualifier that was held April 5 at the York Curling Club in Newmarket. The event was a 2-game knock-out (2 losses) that consists of combined 8 person team of 1 Men's (4) and 1 Women's (4) format. The Ladies team consisted of Skip Shellee Morning, Vice Veronica Wilson, Connie Fraser at 2nd, Kim Batter-shell was Lead, and Sue Burman as alternate. The Men's team included Skip Andrew Kolody, Dave Barber as Vice, Trevor Battershell as 2nd, Mark Inglis as Lead and Greg Switzer as alternate.

The event came down to 2 teams from Newmarket and one from King vying for the 2 spots that advances to the Provincial Championships. Team King qualified after posting a 1-1 record and the trip to Oshawa for the Provincials that were held this past weekend.

Four Groups of 4 teams (8 players per team) in each pool participated in the guaranteed 3 game round robin. Oshawa welcomed teams from St. Thomas, Metcalfe, North Grenville, Guelph, Cornwall, Toronto, Barrie, Dundas Valley and Stroud displaying pure enthusiasm and a competitive energy that rippled across the 8 sheet

The event included several curlers that have participated in both the Women's National event; The Scotties Tournament of Hearts as well as The Men's Brier.

King opened with a loss to the last 2 year's champions from St. Thomas, but rebounded with a very solid win over Metcalf. They lost a close scoring game against Elmira for 1-2 record but a closest draw to the button measure put them in a 3-way tiebreaker for the quarter finals playoffs. The tiebreaker game against Metcalfe was a long and gruelling 2.5-hour game that immediately followed their previous game (2.5 hr.) against Elmira. The score went back and forth finishing in a tie after

An extra end was required that again ended in a tie. A 10th end was needed where the lead was once again exchanged back and forth. The decision came down to the last rock that landed in Metcalfe's favour. A valiant effort by all of Team King's players who gave it "their all" in every end of every game.

Congratulations to King Curling Club's Men's 2 Person stick team and to the Silver Tankard team for your outstanding efforts and representation for the King Curling Club.

Horticulture By John Arnott

As time was of the essence the 30 something man wearing a long, white, seamless, fine wool coat over a knee length, also white, linen tunic walked briskly from the supper room out across the green towards the nearby low hill followed by 3 much younger men hurrying to catch up. Coming to the yard where the yard or gethsemane where the oil presses stood he pushed open the unlocked gate and proceeded on to the path familiar to him from his days as a student at the Temple school and to climb up the slope through the olive trees. The St. Alban's Anglican community notes at this mid Eastertide time stories of Yeshua's last days on Earth are still being told and perhaps none are more poignant than that of his brief and prayful stay on the Mount of Olives.

In the Noah myth it was a small branch of grey green finger like olive leaves the dove brought back to the ark which told him that God's anger with mankind was over and "his goodwill towards men" had been restored. Thus to offer an olive branch came to mean let's have peace. There amongst those already ancient olive trees Yeshua found some on that long ago fateful night. Today, the area where stands the Mount of Olives needs all the olive branches it can get!

Olive trees, olea europaea to the botanist, and from which we get our word oil are probably the oldest trees on the planet. Their fruit is classed as a drupe or 1pit/stone fruit like cherries and peaches and gives us a health promoting oil. The oleic acid found in this oil is a monounsaturated type that helps prevent heart disease.

Olive trees are believed to have originated 20 to 40 millions years ago around the Mediterranean area and have been a source of food, oil and wood for humans for 100,000 years. Though it isn't known for sure most paleobotanists say wild olive trees called oleasters first grew in Syria and it didn't take huntergatherers long to appreciate them. Canaanite farmers in what is today Lebanon-Israel are thought to have first cultivated them and ancient records show olive oil became a leading export to Egypt and Greece. The Greeks took cuttings and saplings to start their own orchards firstly on Crete and then on the mainland.

At some 4,000 years old the Ano Vouves olive tree in the little Cretan town is said to be the oldest olive tree in existence and it still produces fruit! There are those who maintain the 16 trees called the Sisters in Lebanon are older at least 5,000 or more years of age. And it is claimed from 1of these still fruit bearing trees came the branch the dove brought Noah.
